Letter from the Director

Ian Wardropper

It has been another memorable year for The Frick Collection. With groundbreaking exhibitions, world-class education programs, and unprecedented support from our loyal members, the museum and library have pushed the boundaries of their potential on many fronts. All of us here are extremely proud of these achievements, especially as we move forward with important plans that will ensure the institution's continuing success for decades to come.

In anticipation of our proposed renovation and expansion project, we announced an arrangement with The Metropolitan Museum of Art that will allow the Frick to temporarily operate out of the Marcel Breuer-designed building at 945 Madison Avenue during construction. (The building is owned by the Whitney Museum of American Art.) This location will enable us to continue to serve the public while work progresses on our beloved Gilded Age mansion, at the same time providing an extraordinary opportunity for visitors to experience the Frick's permanent collection, programs, and library resources in an entirely new context.

In May, the proposed plan by Selldorf Architects received the enthusiastic endorsement of CIVITAS, a not-for-profit civic organization representing Manhattan's Upper East Side and East Harlem neighborhoods. I was honored to accept its 2019 August Heckscher Founder Award for Community Service, which recognized the Frick's responsiveness to community feedback while formulating our renovation proposals. In June, the Frick hosted the first of several Open House events, providing members, friends, and neighbors the opportunity to see the spaces on the mansion's second floor that are slated to become permanent collection galleries when the museum reopens following the renovation and enhancement project.

Our ambitious exhibition schedule this past year saw pioneering scholarly research and noteworthy presentations that were met with great acclaim. The fall 2018 season began with The Charterhouse of Bruges: Jan van Eyck, Petrus Christus, and Jan Vos. For only the second time in their history, the Frick's Virgin and Child by Van Eyck and his workshop was reunited with a similar panel by Christus, both commissions of the Carthusian monk Jan Vos. The exhibition included a selection of monastic objects that helped to contextualize the rich setting for which the two panels were created. In October, we opened Masterpieces of French Faience: Selections from the Sidney R. Knafel Collection, which featured the promised gift of seventy-five glazed earthenware objects from the collection of longtime supporter and Trustee Sid Knafel. Continuing our recent focus on the presentation of works by influential but lesser-known decorative arts masters (including Pierre Gouthière, in 2016–17), we mounted Luigi Valadier: Splendor in Eighteenth-Century Rome. The show was the Frick's largest decorative arts exhibition organized to date, and I am extremely proud that it was recognized as Apollo magazine's 2018 Exhibition of the Year.

The shows in 2019 continued to impress with their scholarly innovation, beginning with Moroni: The Riches of Renaissance Portraiture, the first major U.S. exhibition to focus on the portrait paintings of the sixteenth-century Italian master. It was honored as a Critic's Pick by New York Times art critic Roberta Smith, who praised the featured works for their "stunning freshness and clarity." Opening in April, Tiepolo in Milan: The Lost Frescoes of Palazzo Archinto was inspired by the single painting Henry Clay Frick acquired by Giambattista Tiepolo, an oil sketch depicting Perseus and Andromeda. The exhibition assembled for the first time all known drawings and painted sketches the artist made in preparation for a series of frescoes for the Palazzo Archinto in Milan, which was tragically destroyed by bombing in 1943. The Cabinet Gallery exhibition Whistler as Printmaker: Highlights from the Gertrude Kosovsky Collection showcased a selection from the promised gift of forty-two prints by James McNeill Whistler, which triples the museum's works on paper by the American expatriate artist. We rounded out the year with a temporary installation by renowned author and ceramist Edmund de Waal in Elective Affinities: Edmund de Waal at The Frick Collection, his first such site-specific project in the United States. De Waal's porcelain, steel, gold, and alabaster sculptures recalled the materials through which Henry Clay Frick made his fortune and the many fine European objects he so passionately collected. The artist's stark installations both echoed and contrasted with the luxurious materials found throughout the Frick's galleries, as well as the character and history of the physical spaces themselves. An accompanying audio tour featured de Waal discussing the works on display, complemented by music that inspired him during their creation.

In May, Xavier Salomon, Aimee Ng, and I accompanied a group of donors to Milan for the annual Director's Trip. There we gained firsthand insight into the lives and work of Tiepolo and Moroni, whose exhibitions at the Frick Xavier and Aimee organized, respectively. We enjoyed visits to numerous cultural and historically significant sites in and around the city, including Bergamo, where Moroni lived and worked, and the stunning palazzo and gardens of Isola Bella, on the Lago Maggiore.

In June, Senior Curator Susan Grace Galassi retired after some thirty years of dedicated service to The Frick Collection. In recognition of her many contributions and achievements, she was named Curator Emerita. Susan organized an impressive number of groundbreaking and well-received exhibitions during her tenure, including Whistler, Women, and Fashion (2003); Goya's Last Works (2006); Picasso's Drawings, 1890–1921: Reinventing Tradition (2011–12); Turner's Modern and Ancient Ports: Passages through Time (2017); and, most recently, Zurbarán's Jacob and His Twelve Sons: Paintings from Auckland Castle (2018). In addition to the exhibitions she curated, Susan launched the Frick's Education Program, which created engaging and illuminating content for students and a wide range of adult audiences. We thank Susan for her years of dedication not only to the museum, but to the most rigorous standards of scholarship. She was an inspiring mentor to a generation of curatorial assistants, and her warmth, humor, and scrupulous attention to detail will be greatly missed. We wish her all the best going forward.

The Education Department once again offered a stellar roster of programs, which this year served more than 30,400 people. Guided School Visits introduced the Frick to nearly 4,000 students, ranging from middle school through college, while a variety of engaging talks and lectures by world-renowned scholars informed and inspired audiences both onsite and virtually through streamed and archived content. Our popular First Fridays series attracted an enthusiastic public for free talks, performances, and sketching in the galleries. On average, nearly 64% of First Fridays attendees were first-time visitors. We are grateful to Dr. Tai-Heng Cheng and Cole Harrell, the Stavros Niarchos Foundation, and the New York City Department of Cultural Affairs in partnership with the City Council for enabling us to offer this special free evening access on an ongoing basis.

We are very proud of our innovative collaborations with community, cultural, and educational organizations across New York City. In September, the Education Department hosted the Frick's inaugural Community and Cultural Partnerships Evening to honor more than a dozen of its partners, including Columbia University's Narrative Medicine Program, which brings medical students into the galleries to encourage close looking and observation, and the Ghetto Film School, which cultivates the storytelling skills of high school students through focused onsite seminars that marry the visual and cinematic arts.

The Frick Art Reference Library carried on its nearly hundred-year-old mission to serve its constituents, today a growing community of international researchers. To that end, the library pursued a number of digital initiatives to aid scholars working remotely. The Digital Art History Lab launched a beta version of ARIES (ARt Image Exploration Space), an interactive platform for viewing groups of images. The Center for the History of Collecting added a searchable map interface to its archives directory, funded by a grant from The Gladys Krieble Delmas Foundation. The Photoarchive advanced its large-scale digitization efforts, and by the end of March more than 50,000 photographs of works of art from the American School had been scanned, enabling them to be moved to offsite storage. This work was made possible, in part, through a grant by the Andrew W. Mellon Foundation. Both the Photoarchive and the Digital Art History Lab embarked on collaborations with Cornell and Stanford Universities focused on computer vision and the generation of subject headings from images using artificial intelligence.

In addition to its successful digital initiatives, the library also offered a number of well-received onsite programs, including three memorable symposia presented by the Center for the History of Collecting. The first, "The Orléans Collection: Tastemaking, Networking, and Legacy," took place in January and was co-organized and hosted by the New Orleans Museum of Art. In April, to coincide with the Frick's Moroni exhibition, the Center hosted "When Michelangelo was Modern: The Art Market and Collecting in Italy, 1450–1650,” which concluded with an interview with Trustee Aso O. Tavitian, a collector of sculpture and Old Master paintings and a supporter of the show. In May, a panel of scholars, curators, collectors, an artist, and a conservator came together to discuss earth and site-specific art. This half-day symposium, “Collecting the ‘Uncollectible,’” took a fascinating look at the many obstacles related to the installation, maintenance, preservation, and ultimate stewardship of large-scale, light-based, and site-specific sculptures, introducing a new audience to the Frick. Several of the symposium’s participants as well as other notable figures from the field created oral histories about relevant projects, which are available on the Frick’s YouTube channel. The Digital Art History Lab also presented two fully subscribed lectures: Anne Helmreich spoke on “Exploring the Gilded Age Art Market through a Digital Lens,” and Rick Johnson shared his insights on watermark identification in Rembrandt’s etchings, including the results of an analysis of watermarks found in the Frick’s Rembrandt prints.

The success of these and other myriad institutional undertakings would not be possible without the support of our loyal members, donors, and Trustees. This year two new members joined the Board: Dr. Tai-Heng Cheng and Kathleen Feldstein. Tai and Kate bring invaluable leadership experience to the Frick from their dedicated service to various civic, cultural, and professional organizations. Both have a demonstrated love of the arts, and I look forward to collaborating with them on future endeavors.

The Autumn Dinner, held October 22, 2018, honored Henry P. Johnson, a long-time champion of the Frick and a patron of numerous cultural and philanthropic organizations. Henry’s steadfast loyalty to the Frick has helped to make many of our initiatives possible, ranging from special exhibitions to projects of the Center for the History of Collecting. The benefit in his honor raised nearly $1.3 million.

On March 21, more than five hundred guests gathered for the Young Fellows Ball, this year sponsored by ALTUZARRA. The Ball’s theme, “Notte a Palazzo,” was inspired by the special exhibition Moroni: The Riches of Renaissance Portraiture. The event raised nearly $290,000, funds that provided vital support for our Education Department and for the Frick Art Reference Library. On May 29, some 750 Fellows and Young Fellows came together for the annual Spring Garden Party, which celebrated the opening of Elective Affinities: Edmund de Waal at The Frick Collection.

In addition to significant donations raised by these memorable events, our Annual Fund campaign generated a record-breaking $1 million during the months of November and December alone, owing to the generosity of Trustee Stephen A. Schwarzman. For the third consecutive year, Steve matched, dollar for dollar, all individual gifts made by our dedicated supporters during these two months, inspiring greater individual contributions, which increased by 46% from the same two-month period the previous year. As a thank-you for this unprecedented generosity, we designated March 2019 as the inaugural Member Appreciation Month, complete with a lively calendar of talks, promotions, and other special events.

As we look ahead to a new decade, I am especially excited by the positive feedback we have received about our renovation and enhancement project. All of us here look forward to the next chapter of the Frick’s evolution and are grateful for the enthusiastic support we have received from our community. I would like to recognize everyone on staff who helps to maintain the institution’s high standards, as well as those of you outside the institution; the encouragement and financial support of our donors and members make everything we do possible. Your support and passion inspire us to continue our work and help to ensure a vibrant future together. Thank you.

Note 1

For purposes of brevity, the June 30, 2019, financial information presented here is excerpted from our audited financial statements as prepared by the independent accounting firm of PKF O'Connor Davies, LLP, which rendered an unmodified opinion as to those statements' conformance with generally accepted accounting principles. This excerpted information does not include the Statement of Cash Flows or the footnotes, which are integral to a full presentation of the Collection's financial position. The complete Report of the Independent Auditors is available by writing to the development office of The Frick Collection.

Note 2: Measure of Operations

Operations include all revenues and expenses that are an integral part of its programs and supporting activities. The measure of operations includes investment income equal to the 4.5% spending rate (see Note 3) and excludes investment return in excess of, or less than, the spending rate. The measure of operations also excludes permanently restricted contributions; purchase and sale of museum and library collection items; unsolicited, unrestricted contributions of $50,000 or more (which are designated by the board as contributions to the Campaign for the Frick: Honoring the Past and Enhancing the Future); depreciation of property and equipment; pension and postretirement plan adjustments; and releases of net assets from restrictions related to non-operating items.

Note 3: Spending Rate

The Frick Collection manages its pooled investments on a total return basis. To preserve the investments' long-term purchasing power, the Collection makes available to be spent each year a percentage of the investment portfolio's average market value for the twelve quarters ending the March prior to the beginning of the fiscal year (the spending rate). The spending rate was 4.5% for fiscal years 2019 and 2018. Although long-term in nature, this policy may be modified over time to reflect economic, market, and investment changes.
